Luxury in the Wild | Glamping at the Heart of Loisaba Conservancy

LOISABA CONSERVANCY

Loisaba Conservancy is a 58,000-acre private wildlife reserve located in Northern Laikipia, Kenya, renowned for its commitment to conservation and sustainable land use. Established with the vision to protect wildlife and support the surrounding communities, Loisaba is home to a wealth of biodiversity, including endangered species like the eastern black rhino, Grevy's zebra, and African wild dogs. The conservancy plays a critical role in maintaining one of Kenya's most important wildlife corridors, connecting the Laikipia region to the Samburu and Isiolo counties, allowing for the free movement of wildlife across this expansive landscape.

In addition to its ecological value, Loisaba is deeply committed to community development, offering education, health, and livelihood programmes that empower the surrounding pastoralist communities. With its rich history, cutting-edge conservation practices, and strategic location in one of Kenya's most stunning landscapes, Loisaba is a leader in preserving Africa's wild heritage for future generations.

THE CONCEPT

Galago Private Canvas is built on an innovative and environmentally conscious design model. At its core, this system transforms a custom-built container into a fully functional luxury camp, complete with spacious tents, flushing toilets, hot showers, a shaded dining area, and all the comforts needed for an unforgettable stay in the bush.

The camp is only deployed when in use, then completely packed down after guests depart—ensuring no permanent structures are left behind and the landscape is returned entirely to nature. This minimal-impact model supports Loisaba’s conservation goals by preserving the integrity of the surrounding ecosystem and reducing human footprint.

With this concept, guests can enjoy a true wilderness experience in comfort, knowing that their stay has been designed with sustainability and environmental responsibility at its core.
